The celebration

On the day agreed with the spouses, the registrar proceeds to unite them in marriage by reading, in the presence of witnesses, the articles of the Civil Code concerning their respective rights and duties. Then follows the declaration of wanting to take as husband and wife and the reading of the marriage certificate, which will be kept in double original.

To give the bride and groom the opportunity to decorate the chosen room, simply make arrangements with the Civil Status Office. Any decorations must still be removed once the ceremony is over.

Next to the phase illustrated above, purely formal, it is still possible to insert moments of conviviality (reading of passages or poems, presence of musicians, photographers ...), to be communicated in advance to the civil status office.

Translator

In the case of spouses who do not speak Italian, it will be necessary for them to present themselves with a translator of their choice.
